How to Build a talent pipeline in 2019

Wouldn't life be easier if every time one of your employees resigned, you had a list of qualified candidates to fill the resulting gap?

With a selection of dedicated applicants at your fingertips, you can spend less time searching for replacement staff members, and more time building your business. That's the driving idea behind the membership talent pipeline.

Most companies take a "passive" approach to recruitment, waiting until someone hands over their notice before they look for new talent. However, a proactive approach with talent pipelines can reduce your risk of hiring mistakes, minimise workplace disruptions, and preserve a better company culture.

Here's how you can take advantage of talent pipelines in 2019 with guidance from membershipbespoke.
